THE SOUTH-CAROLINA AND COUNTRY GAZETTE; JOURNAL.

Containing the freſheſt Advices, both Foreign and Domeſtic.

TUESDAY, JUNE 9, 1767.

LONDON, FEBRUARY 20.

To the PRINTER of the PUBLIC LEDGER.

IT muſt appear to ſome kinds of people here not a little extraordinary, that the houſe of repreſentatives in South-Carolina, ſhould make it the firſt work of their ſeſſion, to give directions concerning the ſtatue of the Earl of Chatham, which they had before reſolved to erect in memorial of his good ſervices in the glorious cauſe of liberty.

In the introductory paragraph to the lately-publiſhed extract of a letter on this ſubject, it is ſaid the ſentiments of the Americans in general are expreſſed in the reproaches which it contains of the revilers of this nobleman in Great-Britain, who villify and beſpatter him in volumes of Newspapers and pamphlets; nor can any man of intelligence or underſtanding entertain the ſmalleſt doubt, that ſuch are likewiſe the ſentiments of all foreign nations.

But high injuſtice is however done to the ſenſe and candor of the people of this iſland, if they imagine their ſentiments in general are expreſſed by thoſe writers; becauſe nothing can be more evident than, that the generality of the people here hold quite oppoſite opinions, as well from their conduct as their converſation; and, therefore, ſuch clamour and ſcurrility can be no other than the impotent efforts of envious, malicious, and ſelf-intereſted factions, for, alas! we have more than one.

There muſt and ever will be numbers of men who, in the purſuit of their own ends, will be induſtrious in oppoſing, miſrepreſenting, and decrying the beſt of miniſters and of meaſures. But what they either ſay or write is not the ſenſe of the people, nor of courſe regarded by them; as has been made apparent, very lately, in more extraordinary inſtances than one. Could all the ſkill and addreſs that were employed to fill the public mind with alarms in the cauſe of freedom, for a neceſſary exertion of power in behalf of the people, make ſo much as the ſmalleſt impreſſion to the injury of thoſe who were the adviſers of that meaſure? We plainly ſaw they could not. The public was wiſe enough to diſtinguiſh rightly between views and proceedings to injure or ſerve, and readily pronounced, where the latter was evidently the object, the exertions of prerogative in their natures muſt be laudable, becauſe they were made in behalf of the people, and ſuch could be only cenſurable as were deſigned to do them wrong.

All men indeed are not wiſe, any more than they are all honeſt; and ſome will be as unreaſonable in the expectations which they entertain of men, as others will be in their pretenſions for themſelves, or in the cauſeleſs diſtruſts of others which they are ever ready to entertain, from being themſelves naturally or habitually ſuſpicious. Theſe are the kinds of men on whom factions can beſt operate, and of whom we meet with great numbers among our minor politicians; moſt of whom imagine they have opinions of their own, though, like the varying colours of the camelion, they are but ſuch as are given them, and inſenſibly imbibed from thoſe who are the ſpreaders of them about, from either deſign or infatuation.

Deſigning men have often ſecret purpoſes to ſerve, by aſſiduouſly circulating the Lie of the day, or even of the hour, for impoſing on the weak and credulous, who take up opinions without knowledge or judgment, yet fancy they have both. Abundance of theſe abuces do we ſee ſpawned in the preſent times, and particularly about the cauſe of Lord Chatham's detention at Bath, which numbers are ſeen ready to aſſign to any thing except the gout, though no other whatever can be rationably aſſignable. This hour it is ſaid, he is determined to reſign, becauſe he finds his ſchemes of policy are impracticable, and therefore he will return to town no more: The next, it is ſaid the miniſtry diſagree, or are grown weary of his guidance; then, that he trembles at the refractorineſs of the people of New-York, and begins to diſcover that his opinions, with regard to America, were wrong. Now the buſineſs of the Manilla ranſom is ſaid to go on untowardly; and anon it is believed, that he knows not what to do with Portugal. Theſe and abundance of ſuch like cauſes are aſſigned for his continuance at Bath, and they operate on weak minds like the prodigies, with a relation of which, and their effects on the people, Shakeſpeare makes Hubert to terrify the mind of King John. But if a knowledge of theſe our prodigies in politics does get to the Earl of Chatham, they certainly muſt produce a quite contrary effect, and happily ſerve to make him laugh off occaſionally, for a few moments, the ſevere pains of his diſtemper.

Can any man who grounds his opinions on accurate obſervation or experience, but for a moment conceive, that the ſpirit and genius of our great Stateſman are become ſo loſt, as to cauſe him to ſkulk from the ſcene of action at ſo critical a time? or that his preſence in Town would not be equally neceſſary, on his immediately quiting the helm of State in diſgrace, or continuing to hold it? Yet, falſe as they muſt be, ſuch are the tales of the paſſing hours; and they are not ſpread without induſtry, for the factious end of diſquieting the public mind, to the ſerious amuſement of the weak and credulous, and the diverſion of the really wiſe.

But the public may expect to ſee his Lordſhip very ſpeedily in Town; where his preſence will ſoon ſerve to diſcredit every idle tale, and remove all rediculous apprehenſions. None of like natures, of which we ſee, can operate on the minds of the Americans, whoſe happy regions, as yet, are un-curſt with ſelfiſh factions, bent upon governing or diſtracting the ſtate; and therefore they judge without prejudices, and may well reproach us for doing otherwiſe; happy for us it will be, if they do it to our real benefit.

I am Sir, your humble Servant,

A PLAIN DEALER.

A WHIMSICAL WILL.

SINCE Youth and Age muſt quit the Stage,
And, either ſoon or late,
By Death be hurl'd out of the World;
So ſtern the Will of Fate:

I, in the Prime of Health and Time,
Without Regret, divide,
And frankly ſhare, what I muſt ſpare,
As Reaſon deigns to guide.

Imprimis. To the wrangling Crew
Of Catchpoles and Attornies,
I leave my Feet, light, quick and fleet,
To ſpeed them on their Journies.

And, as I know their Fund's ſo low,
I, to their other Talents,
Add Scruples three of Honeſty,
Their dark Accounts to balance.

In this Bequeſt, above the reſt,
I had been more profuſe;
But that, 'tis plain, one ſingle Grain
Is more than ere they uſe.

To thirty Sots, I leave full Pots
Of Water mix't with Gall;
And, what's far worſe, an empty Purſe,
And Credit ſunk withal.

To Coquets nice, this ſage Advice
I leave to all their Clan,
To lay aſide their empty Pride,
And marry when they can.

To formal Prudes, whom Love excludes,
Deſpair and rotten Teeth;
Wrinkles, grey Hairs, and all the Cares
Old Maids are peſter'd with.

The Daſtard's Part, ſhall be my Heart,
My Fortitude, and Spirit;
And ſuch as fret, and oft take Pet,
My Patience ſhall inherit.

The beauteous Fair, my Love ſhall ſhare,
Who's virtuous, true, and loyal;
The reſt I leave, Rakes to deceive,
And ſtand the old Maid's Trial.

Such Tools of State, whom public Hate
Has wrapp'd in dark Diſguiſe,
Who graſp at Pow'r, and Wealth devour,
To Juſtice I deviſe.

Each noiſy Scold, who, uncontroul'd
By Reaſon, can't be civil,
But din Mankind, I leave conſign'd
To Bedlam or the D——l.

Naples, March 19. The day before yeſterday the King ſignified in public his future marriage with one of the Archdutcheſſes of Auſtria, and ordered circular letters to be ſent round previous to the celebration of it.

Genoa, March 14. We have received advice, that M. Pinelli, who ſailed from hence about a week ago, was obliged to put into the gulf of Spezzia, but will ſail for Capraja as ſoon as the wind permits, in order to make the ſecond attempt to aſſiſt the garriſon in the fortreſs of that Iſland, and to intercept any ſuccors that may be attended for the Malecontents. According to letters from Boniſaccio, the Corſicans appear, by the diſpoſitions they are making, to be preparing for a blockade.

Paris, March 27. We have received advice, by an expreſs, that the Spaniſh Flota from the Indies arrived at Cadiz on the 13th inſtant, conſiſting of three men of war, a Swediſh flute, laden on the King of Spain's account, and five Spaniſh merchant ſhips, all under the command of Don Auguſtin d'Yſiaquez. The treaſure and effects brought home are eſtimated at 19,149,461 piaſters. They write from Genoa, that a Corſican expreſs had juſt arrived with advice, that the Count de Marbœuf had broke up the line which was formed laſt ſummer, to prevent a communication with Paoli's troops, by which a free intercourſe had taken place between the Malecontents and the French.

Extract of a Letter from Oxford, March 21.

"Laſt week the ſkeleton of a man in fetters, with one jaw and ſome of the large bones perfect, was dug up in removing ſome ground in our Caſtle-Green, Eaſtward of the old Country-Hall, memorable as the place wherein was held the fatal Black Aſſize, in the year 1577, when her Majeſty's Lord Chief Baron, then on the Bench, with Sir Robert de Oilie, Sir W. Babington, the High-ſheriff, all the Gentlemen of the Grand-Jury, and upwards of 500 other perſons were infected by a Gaol Diſeaſe, and died between the ſixth of July and the tenth of Auguſt. The body of this criminal muſt have been firſt buried at leaſt ſeven or eight feet deep, and had been thrown into the ground amidſt a great number of large ſtones. This ſkeleton is by ſome conjectured to be the remains of one Rowland Jenkes, the perſon tried and condemned at that Aſſize for Sedition, and who was at the Bar when that dreadful Cataſtrophe befel the Court. The fetters are entire, and having laid in dry ground, are much leſs impaired than might naturally have been expected; and when found, the bone of one of the legs had the fetter upon it."

MARCH 25. We hear a certain great perſon in a very few days will make the long expected plan of operations for this year, which, for the boldneſs and extenſiveneſs of its Scope, we are informed will alarm and aſtoniſh all Europe.

Yeſterday was held a board of admiralty at Charing-Croſs, at which, it is ſaid, the maſter builders of his majeſty's dock-yards attended their Lordſhips for inſtructions relative to the immediate building ſeveral men of war and frigates for his majeſty's ſervice.

Extract of a letter from Sileſia, March 7.

"They talk here variouſly of the ſituation of affairs in Poland. Some ſay, that means will be found to terminate them amicably, and that for this purpoſe a new diet will be held. Others pretend, that a war between Ruſſia and Poland is inevitable, and that if the former has not already declared, ſhe will do it ſoon. In order to abridge this war, Ruſſia, it is ſaid, will employ directly an army of an hundred thouſand men; as yet we do not perceive, that the court of Vienna has any deſign to enter into this affair. It remains to know, whether circumſtances may render its neutrality neceſſary. The great tranquility which is obſerved in all the Roman catholick courts, ſeems to give us to underſtand, that the event alone will determine them. If unhappily other powers ſhould interfere, the war may become more general than was at firſt imagined."

Monday the right hon. the Earl of Chatham, being a little recovered from the gout, had the honour of a ſhort conference with his Majeſty at the Queen's palace.

We hear that several species of mineral ores, coral, and pearls, are brought home in the Jason man of war, from her late discoveries in South-America.

March 31. The report of several material changes in the administration is revived, and gains credit. Those in agitation are said to be as follows:

The right hon. Charles Townshend to go out, and to be succeeded by the right hon. Sir Gilbert Elliott, Bart. others by Lord Barrington.

General Conway to return to the army.

Duke of Grafton to be Secretary of State in his room.

The D. of Northumberland to be first lord of the treasury.

Lord Chatham every day takes an airing in his coach, but is still so much indisposed as to be unable to go to court, or attend a council; for which reason one of the Secretaries of State are almost every day in conference with his lordship.

The King has been pleased to appoint the Hon. Robert Walpole, to be Secretary to his Majesty's extraordinary embassy to the King of Spain.

Besides the Jason man of war just arrived, who has been out, it is said, near three years on discoveries to the southward, there are now out on a like errand to the southern parts of the world, the Dolphin man of war and Swallow sloop, who have with them a storeship, called the Prince Frederick, all of which sailed about half a year since; and the last account received of them was by the Portuguese fleet, who saw three English ships; supposed to be the above, putting into some port in Brazil.

From what we have been able to gather concerning the late expedition of the Jason to South America, it is said, that Capt. M'Bride, on his first going on shore, sowed several kinds of English garden seeds, wheat, &c. and calling at the place at a proper time, to see the event, it was found none of them had been brought to any degree of cultivation.

On Saturday the keel of a new frigate of war, to mount thirty-six guns, was laid upon the stocks at Chatham, to be called the Shannon, in the room of the old Shannon frigate, lately condemned to be broke up.

A master of a Whitehaven ship, who used the African trade, was lately committed to Carlisle goal, on suspicion of murdering one of his boys at sea, which was discovered in the following manner:——A postillion belonging to Sir James Lowther being brother to the boy, on hearing the ship was arrived, went on board to enquire after him, and was told by the other boys that the master, after severe correction, tied some combustibles to his hair, and set them on fire, telling him, that as he was going to hell, these were the flames to shew him light; which so frightened the boy, that he jumped over-board directly, and was drowned. On which the postillion laid the affair before Sir James Lowther, who ordered a Magistrate to examine all the boys and sailors on board the ship, when it not only appeared that the postillion's information was true, but that he had acted with the greatest cruelty and inhumanity to several other boys, particularly that he once turned three ashore on the negro coast, who must have perished with hunger, or been destroyed by the blacks, had they not, at the peril of their lives, ventured to swim on board another ship.

At the general court of the East-India company at Merchant-Taylors-Hall, on Friday, the several plans for accommodation with government which had been given in to the directors were read and debated by the proprietors. A new plan formed by the directors was also expected to be produced that day; but they declared it was not ready, thought it required re-consideration, and consented to lay it before the proprietors at this day, when, after the director's plan is heard, it is proposed that a ballot should be put with respect to the propriety of adopting Mr. Sullivan's. A gentleman who had been some years in India, and had sat second in council at Bengal, desired to know in what manner the succession to the government in Bengal was settled? and after giving his reasons for proposing this question, called for the proper papers to ascertain how the fact stood; and it was carried by 182 to 181, that the court should not adjourn. The particular papers relative to the affair were then moved for; however, after long debates, it was at length agreed to adjourn the consideration of the matter till this day, after finishing the business of the ballot, on the accommodation with government, if there should be time.

APRIL 10. Yesterday morning a messenger arrived from North End, who, it is said, brought an account, that the right hon. the Earl of Chatham had then a severe return of the gout, which confined his Lordship to bit chamber.

When the Post left Dover the packet-boat, with his Serene Highness the Prince of Brunswick on board, was in sight of that harbour.

On Monday last his Grace the Duke of Richmond gave a grand entertainment at his house in Privy-garden, Whitehall, to a great number of the foreign Nobility lately arrived in this kingdom; several Ambassadors and a great number of other persons of distinction were likewise present.

Wednesday the right hon. the Earl of Shelburn, and the right hon. Mr. Conway, his Majesty's principal secretaries of state, the most noble the Marquis of Granby, and many other persons of distinction, paid a visit to the Counts de Chastelet, de Chabrillan, and the Marquis de Conflans, at their hotel in Pall-Mall.

It is confidently reported that some of the French Noblemen lately arrived here have instructions for finally settling every thing relating to the Canada Bills to the mutual satisfaction of all parties.

It is whispered, that a certain Foreign Minister has been told his presence is no farther necessary at this Court.

The number of changes in the superior Offices and Departments of State, since the Accession of his present Majesty, amount to no less than Two hundred and fifty-five.

The Lords of the Admiralty have been pleased to appoint John Elliot, Esq; to be Vice-Admiral of the province of West-Florida, in the room of George Johnstone, Esq.
